Our Mission Statement:

Training Games, Inc. was started in 2001 by Gary Trotta and Mick Riley. These two partners decided to start this company after completing successful careers in training and business. The company has continued to grow and develop every year since inception. We are committed to promoting gaming as a concept in training; and developing a line of programs to support this goal. We want to build our business through superior customer service and unique products.

Introduction to Training Games

WHAT ARE TGI TRAINING GAMES?

TGI has developed training and educational game software to help you present and review your own training questions and material. Because they are games, trainees/students enjoy participating, have fun, and experience better overall retention levels. TGI Games range from our standard Quiz Show and Board Game formats to realistic sports games like Football, Baseball and Golf. TGI Games are economical solutions for business, government agencies or educational Institutions. Choose the game that is right for your group or purchase several games to add excitement into your program.

HOW DO TGI TRAINING GAMES WORK?

TGI Games spice up your entire educational program because they allow you to easily place your own training/educational questions inside a fun and interactive game. Create multiple choice questions from your own program materials and simply type them into the game. Then set a few game options like naming the game, name your teams, decide how you want your questions delivered and you're ready to PLAY. Everything else is done for you. TGI Games are packed full of program options to make every game fun, exciting and easy. TGI games are built in either MS PowerPoint or Excel making them versatile and easy to use. Most games can be played by teams in a classroom setting or by one person against the computer. (Note: TGI PowerPoint games can be played online as well!) A great way to review or study! TGI also offers FREE professionally written Question Sets on our XF games including: Customer Service, Leadership, Sexual Harassment, Work Force Trends, Women's Issues, Diversity & Team Building. All of our packaged Question Sets may be edited to better complement your training needs.

WHY ARE TGI PRODUCTS Microsoft Office BASED?

TGI has developed these products in Excel or PowerPoint to keep game costs low and to make using them EASY. Game interfaces are familiar and user friendly with virtually NO LEARNING CURVE. In addition, if you currently use MS Excel or PowerPoint, TGI games will work flawlessly on your computer system (No sticky IT Issues)!

At Training Games we are introducing a new and innovative product line we called XF products. The XF stands for eXtra Features. These products are loaded with unique and valuable game and training features which engage class participants and enhance learning. The below XF features are found in most of our XF games. On occasion we must exclude features which are not compatible with the scoring or play of the particular game. ' Here is a XF feature recap:

Team Play Features:

- 1.) Team play features up to 8 teams with as many as 20 players/team.
- 2.) XF team games can be set to be play with many different options and question delivery choices. In addition there are two distinctly different team game formats we call our Quiz Show and Peril games. The Quiz Show Format allows the answering team to first select a question category from 3 categories before answering. Alternatively, this game can be played by having an opposing team select the question category for the team that is up. In this way we ensure more player involvement on each and every question. Peril, is a jeopardy style team game. "I'll take Leadership for $600".
- 3.) Team games can be played in Normal or Fast Response mode. Fast Response means the team that answers first gets the question. The XF games work with USB Buzzer Systems or manually (i.e. teams ring a bell or raise their hands to signal they have the answer).
- 4.) There is even a Random Team Selector built into the game for yet another way to select a team to answer.
